Using Department of Education Title VI funding, UNC faculty partner with local community college and K-12 teachers in Wake County to explore the impact of international relationships on the NC economy.

USDA sponsored SNAP-Ed/No Kid Hungry at UNC-CH’s Center for Health Promotion and Disease Prevention expands and promotes access to healthy foods available through underutilized federal child nutrition programs in Durham County.

With funding from HRSA, UNC-CH provides education and training in Wake County for patients, families, and direct care workers on geriatric screening and syndromes, especially Alzheimer’s disease and related dementias, to increase their ability to manage chronic health conditions and improve quality of life.

Through College Advising Corps grants UNC-Chapel Hill advisers promote college access in low-income communities in Durham County.